

HASTINGS 1066 FOUNDATION

President's Message

"Foundation Celebrates 30th Anniversary with Record Numbers"

Dear Fellow 1066 Foundation Members: This year marks the 30th anniversary of the Hastings 1066 Foundation. Ever since its creation in 1971, the Foundation has been the single most substantial source of private support for the benefit of the law school. During the past decade alone, contributions to the 1066 Foundation have exceeded $4 million, and the number of our Foundation donors has nearly doubled, from the 109 Foundation donors recorded in 1990/91 to a record-breaking 214 donors in 2000/01. If you haven't yet had an opportunity to do so, please read the cover story in the recently published Autumn 2001 edition of the Hastings Community magazine, which describes the Foundation's 30 years of service to and support for Hastings.

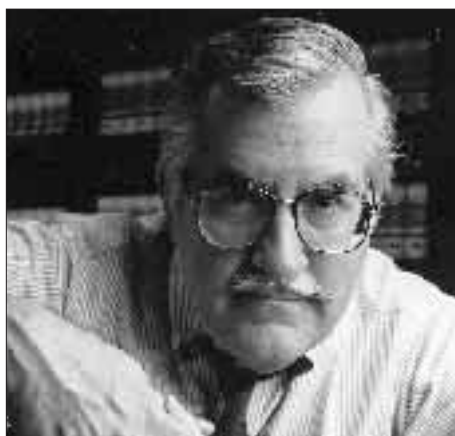

Thanks to you, the recently concluded 2000/01 Annual Campaign generated more than 200 Foundation donors for the second year in a row. The Foundation also experienced a 25% increase in the number of new donors, from the 40 new Foundation donors recorded in 1999/00 to 50 such donors in 2000/01, the highest annual gain ever. This past year, we also had nearly a 20% increase in the number of 1066 Foundation members contributing at the $2,500 level or greater, from the 45 such donors in 1999/00 to 53 in 2000/01. In sum, thanks to your much appreciated continuing support, this past year truly was a record-breaking one for the Foundation.

The Foundation also continued to sponsor a series of memorable events, including a special edition of the Attorneys General Forum held last March, which served as this year's Marvin J. Anderson Lecture program. Following the Forum, the Foundation members and their guests had an opportunity to attend a reception in the Alumni Reception Center on campus, where they were able to meet informally with former Attorneys General Nicholas Katzenbach, Edwin Meese, and Richard Thornburgh. Later, the Foundation members were invited to attend a private dinner with the former Attorneys General at the St. Francis Hotel on Union Square.

Earlier in January, the Foundation held a special dinner party for its Hawaii-based donors, which was generously hosted, once again, by longtime Foundation member Cecilia Blackfield at the Outrigger Club in Honolulu. In May, a reception was held for our Silicon Valley Foundation donors and donor prospects at the Menlo Park offices of Orrick, Herrington & Sutcliffe.

The law school has been most appreciative of this past year's many Foundation contributions and grants for the benefit of Hastings, several of which are highlighted in the pages that follow. I am especially pleased to report on some particularly generous gifts that were made this past year by several of our Foundation members.

Former Hastings Board of Directors member Joe Cotchett ('64) (above) contributed $250,000 to the Foundation to endow a Distinguished Professorship, while current Foundation Trustee Tom Miller ('73) (below) made a $50,000 gift to the Foundation as the first installment for the endowment of a Distinguished Professorship. Celine Forrester, the widow of former 65 Club faculty member Ray Forrester, donated $30,000 to the Foundation to endow a scholarship in Professor Forrester's memory. I also want to express the Foundation's appreciation to both Hastings Professor Marsha Cohen and former Foundation President John Vlahos ('61) for having led a successful fund drive this past year to endow a scholarship in memory of the late 65 Club faculty member and former California Supreme Court Justice, Ray Sullivan. This fundraising effort already has raised more than $21,000, with an overall goal of $25,000.

I hope you will share my enthusiasm for the Foundation's many efforts in support of the law school, particularly after you have had time to review the accompanying highlights of last year's initiatives. Your donations created many new opportunities for the benefit of the law school and its students, opportunities that will help our alma mater maintain its traditional status as one of America's premier law schools. In case you missed it, a recent national survey of judges and lawyers again ranked Hastings among the nation's top 20 law schools.

Using last year's great progress as a springboard for the future, the Foundation's Board of Trustees now invites you to renew your Foundation membership, if you haven't already done so, and then to assist us in recruiting additional members for the 2001/02 Annual Campaign, which began this past July. With our 30th anniversary year not concluding until December 31, 2001, we would like to encourage all of our current members who are able to do so to upgrade their usual Foundation donation to the level of "$3,000 in honor of the Foundation's 30th."

Here's hoping you will not only be able to renew your Foundation membership this year, but that you will also be able to participate in as many of our upcoming special events as possible.

Yours for Hastings,

Robert Freitas ('77), President

Highlights of the Foundation's 2000/01 Grants and Activities

KEY FOUNDATION GRANTS

What your Foundation gifts fund:

Faculty Development Grant—$10,000

Through its Faculty Development Grant, the 1066 Foundation has fostered scholarship and made faculty participation possible at a number of major conferences and symposia. Foundation funds help to defray the expenses of faculty who have been invited to give lectures and presentations at these events and thereby encourage continued scholarship, foster faculty career development, and keep Hastings in the public eye.

Hastings 1066 Foundation funds enabled Professor William Dodge to attend a Conference of the International Law Association at Pepperdine University in January 2001. Professor Dodge moderated a panel on the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). He also delivered a paper on the Alien Tort Statute.

Professor William Dodge

This past spring, 1066 Foundation funds enabled Professor Ashutosh Bhagwat to serve as moderator of a joint ABA/AALS panel of prominent academics on the topic of recent developments in antitrust scholarship. The panel took place at the ABA Antitrust Section's annual meeting in Washington, D.C., in March 2001.

This past November, 1066 Foundation funds also enabled Professor George Bisharat to attend a meeting of the Middle East Studies Association in Orlando, Florida. Professor Bisharat was an invited participant on a panel that focused on the rule of law in the Palestinian Authority areas. Professor Bisharat's presentation dealt with the challenges of establishing an inde-

By providing this type of critical support, the Foundation's Faculty Development Grant serves to promote scholarship and to maintain a high profile for Hastings faculty at professional meetings and academic conferences all across the country and abroad, thereby opening additional opportunities for the law school to showcase the talents and expertise of its outstanding faculty.

Faculty Award—$2,000 Grant

The Hastings Faculty Executive Committee each year selects a recipient of the 1066 Foundation's annual Faculty Award of $2,000, which is intended to provide research assistance to a Hastings professor who has demonstrated a commitment to excellence in legal scholarship. In particular, the award traditionally is used to encourage the development of younger faculty in their early scholarly endeavors. This year's award was presented to Professor Aaron Rappaport. Professor Rappaport is a graduate of Yale University, where he graduated summa cum laude with a degree in engineering, and received his JD from Yale Law School, where he served as Editor for the Yale Law and Policy Review. Upon graduating from law school, Professor Rappaport held several positions with the federal government, ultimately working in each of its branches. He first clerked from 1991 to 1992 for the Honorable Stephen Breyer, then Chief Judge of the First Circuit Court of Appeals. From 1992 to 1995, he served as Counsel to the Senate Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on the Constitution and, between August 1995 and January 1996, he joined the Clinton Administration to serve as an Assistant Director of the National Economic Council. Later, in 1996 and until he became a Hastings faculty member in 1998, Professor Rappaport was a member of the General Counsel's staff of the Federal Communications Commission, where he represented the FCC in litigation before the U.S. Court of Appeals. In addition to his government work, since 1996, Professor Rappaport has been Co-editor of the Federal Sentencing Reporter, a criminal sentencing journal. Professor Rappaport's principal academic interests include telecommunications law, criminal law, sentencing law, jurisprudence, and moral theory.

The 2000/01 Moot Court Program team members.

Moot Court—$10,000 Grant

When the Director of Hastings' Moot Court Program, Toni Young ('76), reported on the use of the Foundation's 2000/01 annual grant, she noted that 65 students were selected from more than 230 applicants to represent Hastings in 17 regional, state, national, and international Intercollegiate Moot Court Competitions. This past year, trophies and awards included a national championship, a runner-up finish in a national competition, a state championship, three regional championships, five Best Brief Awards, and four Best Oral Advocate Awards.

Hastings garnered a national championship by winning the 2001 Evan A. Evans Constitutional Law National Moot Court Competition. Hastings teams also won three Regional Championships: the Giles Sutherland Rich Moot Court Competition, the Thomas Tang Moot Court Competition, and the Regional award for the National Appellate Advocacy Moot Court Competition. Hastings teams won Third Place Awards in seven national moot court competitions: National Appellate Advocacy; Thomas Tang; National Entertainment Law; Robert F. Wagner National Labor Law; National Criminal Procedure; John Marshall Information, Technology, and Privacy; and the National Jerome Prince Evidence Law. In statewide competition, Hastings won the Roger J. Traynor State Moot Court Championship for the second year in a row.

In addition to awarding the Moot Court Grant, several Hastings 1066 Foundation Trustees and donors also served as judges to help prepare students for the various competitions. Thanks also are due to Foundation member Annette Dobbs, who previously established the Harold S. Dobbs Intermural Moot Court Competition Fund to help defray the costs involved in these important competitions.

Scholarly Publications—$10,000 Grant

When Manager of Scholarly Publications Albert Kaba reported to the Foundation Trustees on the use of the Foundation's annual grant, he noted that there were more than 243 second-year applicants for the school's six journals in this past year's summer writing competition. Total membership on journal staffs and boards was nearly 354 for the 2000/01 school year. Hastings' scholarly publications have a wide readership, including subscribers in all 50 states, in U.S. territories, and in more than 58 countries. Hastings' journals produced 23 editions during the past school year, with an overall distribution that exceeded 21,000 copies. The journals held six symposia during the 2000/01 year. They were:

- The Hastings Women's Law Journal's symposium, "Sexual Slavery: The Trafficking of Women and Girls into the United States for Sexual Exploitation"
- The Hastings Law Journal's symposium "Consumers in the Digital Age: Perspectives on the Intersection Between Law, Technological Innovation, and Consumer Protection"

- The Hastings International and Comparative Law Review's symposium, "Multinational Accountability Under International Law"

- The Hastings Constitutional Law Quarterly's symposium, "Watching the Watchers: Racial Profiling, Thermal Imaging, and the Fourth Amendment"

- The Hastings Communications and Entertainment Law Journal's symposium, "Beta Testing the First Amendment: Balancing Intellectual Property and Freedom in a Networked Society"

- The Hastings West-Northwest Journal of Environmental Law and Policy's symposium, "The Campaign Against Sprawl in the West-Northwest: Smart Growth Proposals and Citizen Initiatives"

Located at the O'Brien Center for Scholarly Publications in the McAllister Tower, all six journals can be reached from Hastings' homepage address: www.uchastings.edu

Editor-in-Chief Awards—$3,000 Grant

In addition to the general $10,000 grant for Scholarly Publications, the 2000/01 Editors-in-Chief listed below were presented with awards of $500 from the Foundation at the annual Scholarship Tea last April.

Editors-in-Chief received their Hastings 1066 Foundation Scholarly Journal Awards at the Scholarship Tea. Marvin J. Anderson Lectureship—
 $10,000 Grant

Each year for the last nine years, the Foundation has issued a $10,000 grant to bring a speaker of national stature to the campus. The Foundation's 2001 Marvin J. Anderson Lecture grant was dedicated to assisting the College in presenting the eighth Attorneys General Forum. As the co-sponsor of the Attorneys General Forum, the Foundation presented the former chief attorneys of the United States in a panel discussion on March 23, 2001, which later was televised nationally by the C-SPAN network.

Attorneys General Dick Thornburgh and Nick Katzenbach with Forum moderator Arthur Miller and Attorney General Ed Meese.

Charles and Jane Rummel Scholarship—
 $1,066 Grant

In the 2000/01 school year, the Foundation awarded the Charles and Jane Rummel Scholarship of $1,066 to Stephen R. Tollafeld, a second-year student.

The award recognizes both superior academic performance and exceptional service to the law school community. The Co-President of the Hastings Public Interest Law Foundation, Stephen Tollafeld, also participated in the Moot Court Program, where he won Best Oral Argument in 2000. He was a member of the team that placed third in the National Criminal Procedure Competition, where he won the prize of Best Brief in the nation. Mr. Tollafeld was a student volunteer advocate in the General Assistance Advocacy Project during his first year and was a project coordinator for OUTLAW, LGBT Students at Hastings. The Foundation Trustees were very pleased to be able to recognize this highly qualified candidate in the year 2001.

Charles and Jane Rummel Distinguished Service Award

The 2001 Charles and Jane Rummel Distinguished Service Award recipient was Michael Jenkins. Mr. Jenkins was recognized by the Foundation for his outstanding service and dedication to the Hastings community. The Charles and Jane Rummel Distinguished Service Award acknowledges Hastings staff members who, like Charlie and Jane Rummel, work quietly behind the scenes to improve the quality of life for members of the Hastings community. The criteria include outstanding service to the law school, length of service, and extraordinary efforts and leadership in support of the College. Mr. Jenkins has been a mainstay in the College Reprographics Department for over 11 years and has played a vital role in all of the department's activities. He always volunteers to help others and goes the extra mile to ensure the success of the Reprographic Department's mandate, having twice stepped into the breach to temporarily fill vacant positions in the department while continuing to carry out his own assignments with extraordinary attention to detail. Through his careful oversight and continual efforts above and beyond the call of duty, he has consistently and effectively served the broader Hastings community in his interactions with all the departments on campus.

Mike Jenkins
