Pacific Legal Foundation's Program for Judicial Awareness 8th Annual Student Writing Competition. The Program will award up to three cash prizes for publishable essays that address one of the following topics:

1) The Supreme Court found in Grutter v. Bollinger that achieving racial diversity in law school classrooms is a compelling state interest sufficient to overcome the Equal Protection Clause's ban on treating individuals differently because of their race. This term, the Court will determine whether the same rationale applies to race-based school assignments in K-12 public education. How should the Court rule on this issue, and why?

2) Evaluate this statement: "Constitutional protection of private property rights is not absolute. When the rights of property owners come into conflict with fundamental environmental values, private rights must yield to the common good."

3) The Clean Water Act gives the federal government authority to regulate or prohibit activity that could pollute the "navigable waters" of the United States. It is universally agreed that the Act also authorizes federal regulation of wetlands, but the extent of that authority is not well defined. In Rapanos v. United States, Justice Scalia's plurality opinion held that federal regulatory jurisdiction exists only over wetlands that are adjacent to (i.e. abut) "a relatively permanent body of water connected to traditional interstate navigable waters," and where the wetland has a continuous surface connection with the adjacent water body such that two are "indistinguishable." In his concurring opinion, Justice Kennedy advanced a different test: that federal jurisdiction extends to any wetlands that "significantly affect the chemical, physical, and biological integrity" of navigable-in-fact waters.

Which of these competing standards should lower courts apply in cases dealing with federal regulation of wetlands under the CWA?

Prizes: First - $5,000; 1st Runner Up - $3,000 and 2nd Runner Up - $1,500.

Deadline: Must be postmarked by no later than May 31, 2007.

American College of Trial Lawyers' Essay Contest. Prizes: First - $10,000 and Second - $5,000.

CAREER TIPS

Interview Etiquette

by Sara Tigerman

You are all prepared to ace your interviews with your excellent answers and questions. But what about the little details before and after the interview? Here's a quick list for excellent etiquette surrounding your interviews:

Interviews at the Office:

- Arrive ten minutes early.
- Be very polite and courteous to all office staff.
- While you are waiting, review your research about the employer and your application materials.

For the Interview:

- Brush your teeth, if possible (and be sure not to smoke just before entering an interview).
- Check that your papers are in order in your portfolio.
- Offer a firm handshake, a smile, and make eye contact when you greet your interviewer.
- Let the interviewer indicate where you should sit.
- Relax - keep your body posture open and lean forward just a little to show interest.

At a Lunch Interview:

- Don't order alcohol, even if others are drinking. Stick with iced tea, water, or soda.
- Avoid finger foods and messy foods. Order something easy to eat with a knife and fork.
- Avoid heavy foods so you don't get sleepy.

- Don't order the most expensive meal.
- Use your napkin often (and otherwise keep it on your lap).
- Take small bites and try to eat when others are speaking.
- Be polite to restaurant staff; your social graces are being watched and evaluated.
- In conversation, avoid discussion of politics, sex, religion or overly personal topics.

Phone Calls:

- Think about and rehearse what you want to say before making the call.
- Be courteous and professional in tone and language.
- Smile when making your call; they will hear it on the other end.
- Note the name of the person with whom you are speaking, and use it during the call.
- Always return calls from employers within 24 hours!

Thank You Notes:

- Are not necessary after OCI or screening interviews, but show good form after a callback or full interview.
- Either send personalized notes to each interviewer, or send one note to your main contact and ask them to extend your thanks to the other interviewers.
  - Handwritten notes can be excellent if your handwriting is excellent, otherwise opt for typed.
  - Only use email if you interviewed with a young attorney at a high tech firm.
  - Check carefully for errors!

- Send out within 24 hours of your interview.

And, as always, come talk with a Career Counselor if you have questions about interviewing!
